Volunteer Application Orange County Rape Crisis Center

Description of volunteer positions:

Companions respond to calls that come in on our crisis response line by either carrying a pager for 24-hours or answering the crisis line directly at the Center's office. Using active listening and crisis intervention counseling skills, Companions provide emotional support to survivors of sexual violence, their friends and family members. Companions are also a source of information about the medical, legal and mental health options and resources available to survivors. Female and male Companions work with female and male survivors of rape, sexual assault, child sexual abuse, sexual harassment, and other forms of sexual violence. They work with clients from a wide variety of backgrounds and with clients whose assaults have happened recently or in the distant past. Companions are expected to take two 24-hour pager shifts or 12 hours of in-house shifts a month and make a nine month commitment to the Center following volunteer training.

Spanish Speaking Advocates respond to calls that come in our crisis response line from Spanish-speakers when our business office is closed by carrying a pager for a week at a time. Our business hours are Monday-Friday 9-5. Using active listening and crisis intervention counseling skills, Advocates provide emotional support to Spanish-speaking sexual violence survivors, their friends and family members. Advocates are also a source of information about the medical, legal and mental health options and resources available to survivors. Advocates are expected to take a week long pager shift every 4-6 weeks and make a nine month commitment to the Center following volunteer training.

Community Educators present educational programming to a variety of community audiences to raise public awareness about the issue of sexual violence and to promote prevention. Educators mainly present child sexual abuse prevention programs in local elementary schools. Daytime availability is required. Educators also have opportunities to represent the Center at community events by staffing OCRCC information tables and answering the community's questions about programs and services. Educators can also be trained to present English- and Spanish-language programs to groups of parents, teachers, and child care professionals on protecting children, sexual harassment, date/acquaintance rape prevention, and self-protection. Educators are asked to present a least two programs per month and make a nine month commitment to the Center following training. Schedules are flexible and are made based on volunteer's availability and school and community group schedules.

Office Volunteers assist with a variety of tasks and special projects in the Center's business offices. Example tasks include: keeping current events files up-to-date, computer entry projects, assisting with large mailings, making phone calls, etc. Office Volunteers are expected to help out between two and three hours a week depending on their availability and the open slots on our Office Volunteer schedule. Office volunteers receive on-the-job training and are asked to make a three month commitment.

Support Group Facilitators help in the creation and maintenance of a safe, supportive environment which provides participants in support groups with an opportunity to come together in support and healing. Support groups aim to provide a welcoming space for survivors of sexual violence who share similar experiences with sexual abuse. Each group is led by two trained facilitators. Support Group Facilitators receive approximately 30 hours of training and are expected to facilitate at least one 8-12 week support group for primary or secondary survivors of sexual violence each year after completion of training. Prior mental health training and/or group facilitation experience preferred.

Training with the Orange County Rape Crisis Center

The issue of sexual violence is challenging, complex and important. Because of this, training for volunteer positions at the Center is intensive and comprehensive. Our volunteers often tell us that the training is valuable to them both personally and professionally.

It is a priority for us that the training class reflect the diversity of the Orange County population. For this reason, we are particularly interested in recruiting African-Americans, Latinos/as, Asian Americans, men, residents of northern Orange County, Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual and Transgendered Individuals, people with experience outside the United States, older adults, those who speak languages other than English, and people with weekday and summer availability. Please continue with the application even if you do not fall into one of these target groups

Once an application has been reviewed by a volunteer supervisors, applicants will be asked to come to the Center for an interview. The interview is an opportunity for you and the staff person you would be working with to learn more about each other: expectations, goals, requirements, concerns, etc. Among other things, we will also ask you to tell us about any personal experience you may have had with sexual violence.
